Visitors & Rhubarb

The club members had talked about making rhubarb slushies, so I went searching for rhubarb drink recipes. You can make them with or without alcohol. I took mine to go with the cookies after church, so just used ginger ale in this first one. The pulp is mighty tasty, too. I'd grated a chunk of ginger a while back, freezing it in teaspoonsful on trays. All those teaspoonsful are separate in containers in the freezer, ready for use. I used one in place of each 1" knob called for, then doubled the recipe. After chilling and before serving, I added 6 cans of ginger ale. (If you don't double the recipe, only use 3 cans.) The second one I served over ice, as it says.

Rhubarb/Ginger Simple Syrup

- 1 C sugar
 - 2 C chopped rhubarb
 - 1" knob ginger, sliced
 - 2 C water
- Bring to a low boil, then reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes without stirring. Remove from heat, let steep 10 minutes. Strain. Let drain naturally, without pressing the pulp, to prevent clouding the liquid. Cool to room temp. Seal in glass jar and refrigerate.

You can mix with 1/2 C lemon juice, 1 C sparkling water, and 1/2 sliced strawberries for lemonade, or use in cocktails, or just add the ginger ale, as I did.

Polish Rhubarb Honey Drink

- 4 C water
 - 1/2 C honey
 - 1# rhubarb, chopped
 - 3 C hot water
 - Ice
 - Orange slices, optional
 - Sprigs of mint, optional
- Boil the 4C water. Remove from heat, stir in the honey, and set aside to cool. Put rhubarb in processor, blend to pulp. Put in medium-sized bowl and pour the 3C hot water over. Cover and let cool. When cool enough to handle, place in fridge two hours, until cold. Strain rhubarb through a sieve into the honey water. Stir to combine. Pour into a pitcher. Fill four tall glasses with ice and pour drink over. Garnish with orange slices or mint sprigs.
